

Elysian Fields - Pure Bred Lamb

Pennsylvania & Ohio Raised

Philosophy

Elysian Fields has created a model for raising lamb founded on a respect for nature and the nature of the lamb itself. The seven family farms of Elysian Fields believe that lamb raised according to its nature results in better lamb. Their patented system, Safe Alternative®, is reflected in their philosophy of the “Holistic Lamb®,” which demands observation of the animals, data collection regarding their feeding and their growth.

The Breed

The breed is cross a Dorset ewe (female) with a Suffolk ram (male). This is a very traditional cross, creating a tremendous quality lamb for the table. The Dorset Sheep is known more producing more fat and inner-muscular fat, while the Suffolk Sheep, is known for producing meat with a milder flavor.

Dorset Sheep

Suffolk Sheep

Holistic Lamb®

Elysian Fields believes raising lamb involves respectful stewardship of the animal throughout the entirety of the life cycle and its product form. No part of the process is neglected because the eventual sum of every detail is represented in a product form at your table. Not unlike a highly detailed, even complicated recipe, that a skilled chef would prepare-it is more than just time and temperature or any single ingredient, but rather how all of these” details” come together to create something magnificent and unique. So it is not just about genetic make-up or “breed”, or water quality, pure feed, stewardship expression, sustainability or animal compassion, but rather all of these details and more. That system collectively makes our statement of Holistic Lamb®, represented by the brand name, Pure Bred.